Introduction

The development of society is based on the internal and external business and other principles of the country, but most of the development is based on the place and role of the language at the state level. For this reason, today every country is improving other foreign languages in the way of the country's development, without paying particular attention to the role and potential of its official language in the society. After all, the future of a nation with a rich language will be bright, because on any road to the future, it is necessary to live in the world of communication, in its atmosphere.

The complex system of communication that is language. Knowledge of and aptitude for using that system. the area of study for. A study of language is linguistics. to establish how many. It is important to differentiate between different world languages. The number of languages is, however estimated to be between 6,000 and 7,000. It's called natural language, but any language can, whether verbally or nonverbally into a secondary medium, like writing, be encoded. Using hearing, visual, and auditory stimuli, braille or whistling touch. Being that human language exists, this is possible without regard to modality. The phrase is used generally. A communicationsystem's set of rules is referred to as language. Semiosis, or linking, is a foundational process in all languages the proper meanings for symbols.

Work and social consciousness are, as well as language one of the three key characteristics that sets them apart. Humans evolved from other animals. Labor is one of these attributes the material support for existence is crucial society. Extremely essential is consciousness. sign language —words, phrases, and sentences are examples of material forms. The perfect works of the mind are directly reflected from the most specific to the most all-encompassing ideas or opinions. Language is therefore more than just a tool ideas, but it can also be a way of forming, expressing, or exchanging ideas, establishing concepts in society's consciousness, and the riches of society are communicated through language members of society gather and discuss current events that take place in the material and spiritual life of man. Language has developed and existed for in the same sense centuries. Thought grows and renews much more quickly than language, but it is impossible to think without language. The way thought is expressed in language is hazy and unclear and makes it difficult for man to comprehend the phenomenon of to advance and advance science for so long. Language cannot exist in a world without thinking, exist. We convey our ideas clearly when we speak and write attempting a more understandable and concise way to communicate our thought in the language. This indicates that concepts develop and are founded on thinking is a whole that is formed by language.

Along with language, work and social consciousness are both one of the three distinctive qualities that distinguishes them. Humans descended from other animals. Among these characteristics is labor important for survival is material support, society. Language, social interaction, and cognitive thinking. Consciousness is absolutely necessary. A sign language is material forms include things like words, phrases, and sentences. Direct reflection of the perfect mental creations from the most specific to the broadest concepts, or viewpoints. Thus, language is more than just a tool. Nevertheless, it can also be a method for creating, expressing, or exchanging ideas.

consciousness, and through language, society's riches are transmitted. People from all walks of life come together to talk about the news that take place in the material and spiritual life of man. In a similar sense, language has evolved and always existed centuries. Much more quickly than, thought expands and renews without language, however, it is not possible to think. The way language conveys thought is hazy and ambiguous and makes it challenging for man to understand the phenomenon of to advance science further that long. A world without thought is inconceivable without language exist without thinking. When we speak and write, we make sure that our ideas are clear in an effort to communicate our ideas in a clearer and more concise manner inside the language. This shows that ideas grow and become the basis of new ideas. Language shapes thinking as a whole.

Language is transmitted through meanings. In some circumstances, one is enriched with new ideas and vocabulary of the material and spiritual cultures' development society. As a result, language and its uses are important development of communication, cognition, and cognition contemplation, etc. Language plays a crucial role in society for the person and for society at large. in science. Regarding the origin of language, there are competing theories and they are at odds with one another. a few of these theories are of the opinion that people's need for language is the cause of language some people think it's the way they converse with one another as a result of some people first voicing their opinions after that, for other people. Therefore, various perspectives concerning origin and development theories and hypotheses language was developed. We must research these theories critically.
